Unveiling of a tapestry

Earlier this year the BMJ presented the BMA's Nuffield Library with a tapestry to mark the library's 100th anniversary. Commissioned from Marta Rogoyska, one of Britain's leading tapestry makers, the tapestry was unveiled by Mary Lutyens, daughter of Sir Edwin Lutyens, the architect of BMA House, who described it as "a brilliant addition to this historic room." The drawing shown here and those elsewhere in this issue were drawn by Ghislaine Howard at the unveiling.
