CORRECTIONLiver Damage and Methotrexate

In a letter by Dr. H. Baker (26 June, p. 776) the plasma levels of methotrexate were wrongly printed. This should have read "Oral doses of 2.5 mg, given five days each week for psoriasis, produce peak plasma levels of about 200 ng/ml and levels above 30 ng/ml may be obtained for up to five hours daily . . .".

Royal College of Psychiatrists

In a letter by Dr. A. Shapiro (17 July, p. 188) he was inadvertently designated "Chairman of the Section of Psychiatry." This should have read "Chairman of the Section of Mental Deficiency" of the Royal College of Psychiatrists.

Cerebral Vasodilators

In the article on "Cerebral Vasodilators" (19 June 1971, p. 702) buphenine (Dilacol) was described as a cerebral vasodilator. Dilacol contains only 1.5 mg of buphenine hydrochloride which would have little vasodilator effect compared with Perdilatal Forte, which contains 6 mg. The sentence should therefore have read "Various other drugs have been used as cerebral vasodilators including nicotinyll tartrate (Ronicol); and buphenine hydrochloride (Perdilatal Forte), which like cyclandelate and isoxsuprine predominantly affects blood vessels in skeletal muscle."
