Correspondence.

The Cancer Hospital.

SIR,—I am quite ready to confess that the fact of my having very recently joined the staff of the Cancer Hospital, and having for the first time to sign a report, does not exonerate me from having done so without examining the statements contained therein too critically. It may excite a certain degree of remissness, but it does not relieve me from the responsibility. And inasmuch as I desire, before all things, to make no statements of any experience of mine to the profession or to the public not amply warranted by the facts, I beg to say on my own part that I disclaim a knowledge of any cure for cancer other than by operation, so far as that may be called a cure.

I know no method, although we have tried many new agents purporting to be remedies, which has any specific influence on the disease, or which is not known equally by others; and I make no claim to any knowledge except that which the treatment of numerous examples of the disease, and the natural interest in it arising therefrom, confer.

I trust this statement will rectify any mistaken impression which my signature to the document in question may have produced; and I do not hesitate to express my regret that my name was attached to it, since I now see it affirms more than I am able to subscribe to.

J. Foster.

The Cancer Hospital Reports.

SIR,—From your observations, and comments made thereon, it appears that our report for the year 1872 is considered to convey an erroneous impression of the work done at the Cancer Hospital. We much regret that such a conclusion should have been formed without our intention. In explanation, we will quote the passages referred to, in order to make ourselves more fully understood.

"Of the in-patients, it is most gratifying to find that fifty-four were discharged with disease arrested or relieved; eighty-nine were successfully operated on, and discharged well; thirty-eight were discharged cured without operation. On the other hand, of seventy-two out-patients admitted, none were discharged, forty-two died, and there remained in the hospital, at the end of the year, fifty-three." In regard to these statements, we can only repeat that they are strictly correct, taken in conjunction with the rest of the report and statistical statement; but, in reference to those patients discharged cured without operation, we desire to explain that the cases include all those treated by cautery, or any method other than the knife, écaresse, or cautery; in each of these groups there are most cancerous cases. We considered the statistical statement fully explained this, but short extracts taken from a document intended to be read as a whole, and even these quoted incorrectly, are calculated to mislead. In one instance you have substituted the word "cured," when that used by us is "relieved," and we cannot think that anyone reading the statistical statement, and our report thereon, would be likely to interpret it in the light you have done; however, we are prepared to admit, that our attention has been drawn to it, that it would be better for the non-cancerous cases to be shown separately, and we think this report will be done this.

We claim no special knowledge regarding the treatment of cancer beyond that which is gained by a large field of observation, and constant familiarity with the disease, and have distinctly stated that we have no faith in any specific for its cure. We are, etc.,

A. P. Stewart.

NOTICES TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Correspondents not answered, are requested to look to the Notices to Correspondents of the following week.

WE CANNOT UNDERTAKE TO RETURN MANUSCRIPTS NOT USED.

Correspondents, who wish to be notified of the transmission of their communications, should authenticate them with their names—of course, not necessarily for publication.

Communications respecting editorial matters should be addressed to the Editor; those concerning business matters, non-delivery of the Journal, etc., should be addressed to the General Manager, at the Office, 37, Great Queen Street, W.C.

We are much obliged by Dr. Ogston's (Aberdeen) kindness in forwarding the desired information.

The Redruth Times and Camborne Advertiser.—The paragraph to which our attention is called in the Redruth Times of July 4th, headed "Dr. Harris among Princes," is a very silly one, and we cannot for a moment suppose that Dr. Harris was cognizant that it would appear. It reads like the chat of a private letter indelicately converted into copy.

Student.—Afield's Chemistry, will, we think, suit our correspondent best.
Mr. Davies (Swansea).—Safey received.
A Country Surgeon should consult a solicitor. Looking to the facts which states, we believe he would have no difficulty in recovering the fee to which he is entitled.
Dr. Harris (Redruth).—Communications as to changes of address and all matters of business, should be addressed to F. Fowke, Esq., General Secretary and Manager, office of the Journal, 37, Great Queen Street, London, W.C.
Dr. Campbell Black.—The matter shall have attention.
M. J. R. Perkins (Downton).—We have no information on the subject.
S. Pratt (West Malling).—The mode of procedure is always indicated in the advertisement, and the best certificates are obviously those bearing on acquisitions and performances relating to public honor.
A Rational Member is not called upon to take part in any proceedings in which he does not concur. The attendance at St. Paul's is wholly voluntary. He will allow others who differ from him "in an unsectarian age" to join in prayer, just as they freely accord to him the undoubted privilege of abstaining from it.
Mr. J. James (Birmingham).—Ladies are not invited to the soirée at the College of Surgeons, nor could they be properly, since it is chiefly held in the Museum. No intention on the subject has yet been received from the Lord Mayor. They are specially invited at the University College.

Iron Alum.

Sr.—Will any of your subscribers tell me the internal dose of iron alum, the quantity for an injection, and in what cases it is most efficacious?
I am, etc.,
A Subscriber

CORRESPONDENTS are particularly requested by the Editor to observe that communications relating to Advertisements, changes of address, and other business matters, should be addressed to Mr. Francis Fowler, General Secretary and Manager, at the Journal Office, 37, Great Queen Street, W.C., and not to the Editor.

INCOME TAX: ITS INJUSTICE TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION.

Sr.,—As a member of a hardworking and ill-paid profession, I desire to call the attention of my medical brethren, through the medium of your Journal, to the great hardship all, more or less, are called upon to pay to the income tax.

A medical man has a large sum of money to spend before he can be fully qualified to practise his profession; he has then to work hard for several years before he can save a penny. He must live well, or he is in danger of falling a victim to the sensualities which will keep a London dress well, and a servant, and live in a pleasant house, or people will not consider him a gentleman. Then he must give long credit, and trust everyone, or he will soon lose his patients. All this he is expected to do; and yet during the first few years of his practice he may make less than a skilled mechanic. However, if his clear income is over one hundred pounds per annum, he must pay a tax of varying amount, which I consider is a sum of money wrongly exacted from him. It may be only a guinea or two, or even less that he has to pay; but if he has house-duty, poor-rate, etc., to pay, he can ill afford to part with the money, which goes he knows not where. Surely things are dear enough already! what with the price of coal, provisions, etc., one finds it hard to live as an educated gentleman, and keep up a respectable position, without having to pay a certain sum out of that which has been hard worked for.

I consider this subject is one worthy of the consideration of the members of the British Medical Association (members of the profession) would combine and petition against the tax being imposed upon medical men, it would be a great boon to many if carried. I should be happy to hear of the result of the petition brought up by the members of the Association in London next month. I, on my part, would certainly support any movement for the repeal of the tax.
I am, etc.,
A Medical Officer.

We cut the following rhymes from the Ohio Clinic, May 3rd, 1873.

The anatomist to his love,
I list as thy heart and ascending aorta
Their volumes of valvarum harmony
And my soul from that musical music has caught a
New life 'mid its anatomical lore.

O rare is the sound when thy ventricles throb
In a systolic symphony measured and slow.
While the auricles answer with rhythmical sob,
As they murmur a melody wondrous low.
O thy corners, love, has the radiant light
Of the spark that lights in the icicle's sheen
And the crystalline lens, like a diamond bright,
Through the quivering frame of thine iris is seen.

And thy retina, spreading its lustre of pearl,
Like the far-away nebulae, distantly gleams
From a vault of black cellular mirrors that burn!
From their hexagon angles the silvery beams.
Ah, the flash of those orbs is enslaving me still,
As they beam, their radiance a dimly translucent
Obeying in silence the magical will
Of the oculo-motor—pathetic—abundant.
O sweet is thy voice, as it sighs sweetly soft
From thy faintly quivering chordal voices,
Or rings in clear tones through the echoing cells
Of the anterior, the ethmoid, and sinus nasal.
O disease of the anterior, and the ethmoid,
A sore in the one, a pain in the other.
