

who tended to overlook them and to leave them in casualty departments or ward offices. Samples of drugs and medicaments were often freely available at exhibitions and could be acquired by persons who had no real knowledge of the dangers which could result from taking large quantities of seemingly innocuous substances. Reference was made to a meeting which had recently taken place between representatives of the B.M.A. and the Pharmaceutical Society. At this meeting it had been suggested that no drug samples should be sent except on direct request. This information was welcomed by the Joint Committee and it hoped that a policy on these lines would be adopted. The R.C.N. undertook to advise ward and departmental sisters that they should not accept samples of drugs or medicaments from representatives of pharmaceutical firms and that they should discourage doctors from handing such samples to them for custody.

Intravenous Drugs

Further discussion took place on this matter. The R.C.N. policy is that the giving of intravenous drugs by nurses, even when the needle was in situ, is not a normal nursing duty. However, the College accepted that with certain safeguards nurses might exceptionally undertake this task if it was necessary in order to maintain the service to the patients. The Committee endorsed the view of its Chairman (Mr. A. STAVELEY GOUGH) to the effect that a registered nurse could administer drugs by the intravenous route provided that the intravenous needle or catheter had been inserted by a doctor and that the nurse concerned had received full instruction from the medical staff on the methods to be used; and that in such circumstances the medical staff must take responsibility for any accident or complication which might arise unless it was due to any negligence on the part of the nurse—for example, if she gave the wrong drug or the wrong dose of a drug.

Other Business

It was agreed that part-time nursing staff had a valuable contribution to make in providing an adequate service to patients and that in the future the health services were likely to become increasingly dependent on part-time staff.

The R.C.N. suggested that, in view of the increasing use of centigrade-scale ther-момeters and the difficulties which could arise when both centigrade and Fahrenheit thermometers were in use in one hospital, the time had come to adopt as a policy the use of the centigrade scale. It was agreed that this should be the aim, but in view of the cost it was recognized that the process must be a gradual one. In order to assist the process, and to avoid confusion during the transitional period, it was thought that temperature charts should show both scales.

Hastings Wine Club at Southampton

World Travel Service (the M.I.A.—B.M.A. Travel Agency) introduced its services with two travelogue films in the Southampton Postgraduate Medical Centre on 15 March. This was followed by a wine-tasting of clarets, introduced by Mr. Davies of Messrs. Jamieson & Co., for the B.M.A. Hastings Wine Club. Many doctors and their wives enjoyed a social evening, both informative and interesting.

Correction

In the report of the proceedings of the Disciplinary Committee of the General Medical Council, Supplement, 18 March, p. 79, and 25 March, p. 84, at the conclusion of the reports of the cases of Dr. A. C. Ewing, Dr. A. B. B. Culhane, and Dr. D. A. Draffin, whose names were directed to be erased from the Register, it was stated that the practitioners had 21 days within which to appeal. This should have read 28 days—in conformity with Section 36 (3) of the Medical Act, 1956.
