

Non Open Access Articles

These terms are applicable to authors of BMJ Journals, which are wholly owned or co-owned by BMJ and which are subject to the BMJ Journals Author Licence Terms agreed as specified at <http://authors.bmj.com/policies/copyright-and-authors-rights/>. The rights granted to authors of non BMJ owned journals may or may not be as per below and author must check the relevant author licence also specified at <http://authors.bmj.com/policies/copyright-and-authors-rights/>.

Definitions

Author's Original Version (Preprint) (AOV) - the pre-review manuscript that is submitted to a journal, or any earlier draft.

Author's Accepted Manuscript (AAM) - the final draft of a manuscript: post peer review, before the article is copyedited, typeset, and published.

Version of Record (VOR) - the final published article. This is the version of the article that states "first published".

Preprint Server - a dedicated not-for-profit preprint server or subject repository, for example, ArXiv or BioRxiv.

Location	What Can Be Posted?	Embargo Period	Conditions
Preprint Server	Author's Original Version	None	Upon publication of the Version of Record we require that authors add the following text to the first page of deposited AOVs. "This is a pre-review version of [Title, Journal, Year, Volume, Issue (where available)].The peer-reviewed Version of Record can be accessed online at [insert full DOI eg. http://dx.doi.org/10.1136/xxxxx]." BMJ will consider for publication articles that have previously had a Creative Commons licence assigned to their AOV.
	Author's Accepted Manuscript	None	BMJ does not recommend that Author Accepted Manuscripts are placed on preprint servers. BMJ produces the Version of Record very quickly after manuscripts are accepted and so we encourage authors to post or link to the VOR, where appropriate. This helps to ensure the validity and integrity of the scientific record as readers are alerted to further versions, corrections, or retractions through technology contained in the Version of Record. AAMs must state that their reuse is allowed pursuant to the terms of the *Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-NoDerivatives 4.0 International (CC BY-NC-ND 4.0) licence. A link to the Version of Record on the Publisher's site must be included
