New Content in BMJ Learning

This year we have continued to develop our educational content and we are excited to share with you the latest new modules we have published so far.

The new areas cover commonly presented conditions and the challenges these pose on hospital care, a series on practical procedures and a new selection of non-clinical topics.

Challenges in Hospital Care Series
A series of interactive modules with new topics including defining and managing Sepsis in children and adults, which has proved to be very well received amongst medical trainees and professionals.

Hospital Presentation Series
We have updated our popular Hospital Presentations Series with new topics and interactive content. With new topics including Alcohol and Substance Dependence and Aggressive and Disturbing Behaviour, BMJ aim to keep these modules accurate and informative for medical trainees.

Infection Control
Learn the essentials of preventing and protecting patients and others from infection from a module that is great for nurses and healthcare professionals.

Ask The Consultant Series
The popular series for internal medicine has even more great content to offer, such as the Diabetes module which is ideal for foundation doctors and medical trainees to gain valuable knowledge on the disease. Further new content includes an enlightening module on Old Age Psychiatry.

Practical Procedures
Perfect your techniques and broaden your knowledge with our range of practical procedure modules. Each of these modules are designed to give you step by step guidance to ensure the safety of your patients and also enable you to get the most accurate results.
