QUERIES AND ANSYERS.

Theatment of Thyroid Cysits.
"F.S." asks if there is any known method of treating thyroid cysts by injections.

Sun Bathing

"N." wishes for details of the construction and main requirements of sun baths in this comntry, and asks where information may be acquired, either in books or by visits to certain places.

Fleas.

"Tr. G. P." (Aylesbury) writes in reply to " W. G. H." (p. 744), who asked how to keep tleas away: This method has proved satisfactory. Enclose in each of four sinall bags a piece of camphor, 1 in . square and $1 / 2 \mathrm{in}$. thick; with a small safety pin attach them to the inside of the tronsers, about the ankle level. Most tleas gain entrance at this spot.

Income Tax.

Cash Receipts Busis.
"II. E. H." has been in practice for many years, and has been assessed on the basis of cash receipts. In July last he boupht an additional practice, which has been amalgamated with his previous one. The inspector of taxes proposes to tax the earuings of the additional practice separately, on the basis of the book debts, and not on that of the cash receipts. The two practices have become so intermingled that separation of the receipts is impracticable.
 On the facts explained it would be legally incorrect, in our opinion, as well as most inconvenient, to make separate assessments in respect of the two practices-which have, in effect, become ove. On the other hand, "H. E. H." cannot claim to apply the cash receipt basis to the new practice as now constituted, becanse the cash, receipts from that portion of, it which results from the purchase of the additional practice will not, in the first year or so, represent a-fair compatation of the " income" therefrom, as calculated according to the Income Tax Acts. The best solution to a somewhat troublesome problem seems to us to be as follows:-July, 1929, to April 5th, 1930 : "H. E. H." to accept liability on the amount of the existing assessment, or on the amount of the bookings from that practice for that periol, less any additional current expenses incurred through taking over the adilitional work. Year to April 5th, 1931: 'Take the cash receipts of the year to December 31st, 1929, plus the probable amount received by the vendor of the new practice in the period Jannary to June, 1929, less the expeuses incurred by "H. E. H." in the year to December 31st, 1929, and those incurred by the vendor in the period Jaunary to June, 1929. The above may be open to some objection on strict techuical grounds, but would provide an equitable settlement.

Payment of Indian Income Tax.

"N. D. D." explains that he receives dividends-on shares in the name of his wife and his children-on which Indian income tax has been paid of, say, about 22d. in the $£$, and he pays here an additional income tax to bring up the total payment to the fuil rate of 4s. in the $£$. He encloses a circular received from the company, and inquires whether he is not paying too much.
 He is chargeable at 4s., less the relief provided. That relief cannot exceed half his "appropriate riate," and as that rate appears to be 4 s ., the maximum relief would be 24d. in the $\dot{\text {, }}$ whereas he has received relief at 22 . in the $£$. Whether he should receive a further 2a. in the £ will depend on the amount of the refund which he can claim from the Indian Revenue under Section 48 of the Indian Income Tax Acts of 1922 and 1928, on which he cau obtain advice on application to the High Commissioner for India in London. What is probably a more important point is that if his children are beneflcially entitled to the income arising on the shares which stand in their names, then they are not taxable in this country as part of "N. D. D.'s" income, though the reverse is the case with the income on his wife's shares. This is a point which he would be well advised to take up with his local inspector of taxes at an early date.

Separate Assessment of Husband and Wife.

Crinos" (whose inguiry was answered on September 21st, p. 565) writes again with regard to the calculation of the allowances due to his wife and himself separately, sending additional particulars.
 'The allowances appear to be correctly calculated; the marked difference between the years 1927-28 and 1928-29 is due to the change in our correspondent's own income, following on the sale of investments and the purchase of an annuity.

LETTERS, NOTES, ETC.

Prescribing by Circular.

"C." writes: A few days ago I came into possessiou of a circular, copies of which had apparently been sent to all the customers on the books of a certain chemist. This circular advertised cachets of thyroid and manganese for trial to members of the general public in cases of "asthma, rheumatism, blood pressure, obesity (stontness), intestinal troubles, acne (pimples and blotches), kidney tronbles, neuritis, and all other troubles which are caused by auto-intoxication." it scarcely seems right that a chemist should circularize the public in such a mauner, since thyroid and manganese is not a preparation which can be taken with impunity without medical supervision. Surely the doctor is the one to say whether this treatment is suitable for any particalar case, and not the chemist. Is it not against the ethical code of phamacists to purloin a mode of treatment from the medical journals and advertise it wholesale to their customers? How can it be prevented?

An Irish Medical Poet.

" Inish Graduate " writes: I desire to draw attention through your columms to the proposed publication of the letters of Dr. Dremman, the lelfast patriot, poet, and doctor, who lived at the end of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth centuries. Dr. Dreunau was the author of the well-known poem "When Erin First Rose" and other poems; he was in close coutact with many well-known figures in a stirring period of lrish history. Those who desire to support the publication should send their uames to the Deputy Keeper of P'ublic Records, Public Record Office for Northern Ireland, Murray' Street, Bel rast or H.M. Stationery Office; Custom House, Belfast. The price ol the publication will be 7s. 3d., post free; but the voltume will ouly be brought out if sufficient subscribers are obtained. Those whic wish to make the publication possible should write at once to oue of the above addresses.

Herpes and Varicella.

Dr. E. J. Boscirl (Bruton, Somerset) writes: On Augnst 2Gth I wa called to see a woman, whom I found to be suffering lrom rathei severe froutal (supraorbital) lierpes. Lxactly foucte eu days later September 19th, three of her childrent developed varicella. At the time, so fir as I can iscertain, there were no other cases of varicella iu this district.

Erratum.

In the final correction of Dr. F. G. Chandier's, paper on "Conditions Simuiatmg Pulmonary I Tuberculosis" (publisherl last week), ia regrettable error was perpetrated by the substitution of one line for another. Line 11 in the first column of powe 707 is obvionsly out of piace and distorts the sense of the whole sentence. This, which begins in line 9 , should read as follows: "In 1924 I made, with my honse-physician 1)r. it.ho, an iuvestigation into the question of whether the finecal extmination for tubercle bacilli was of real practical clinical value."
