Instant age-sex register

JOHN HENDERSON

Abstract

An age-sex register for use in general practice was obtained by the use of a computer program written on a small computer by direct transfer of data to a microcomputer.

Introduction

A device to show an age-sex register for use in our practice and to enable more frequent expression of views of patients on the practice list as the computer is being used to try to assess the experience details of all patients.

References