Cite this as: BMJ 2020;371:m4123
<http://dx.doi.org/10.1136/bmj.m4123>
Published: 29 October 2020

The BMJ Interview: Tim Spector on how data can arm us against covid-19

We have amended this article (BMJ 2020;371:m3921, doi:, published 14 October 2020) to note that anosmia was first identified as a covid symptom by clinical reports from Italy, Belgium, and a group of UK consultants led by Claire Hopkins, rather than by the Covid Symptom Study app.